LETTER FROM THE MENAHEL:

Dear Parents,

In this week's parshah, Kedoshim, we are instructed to be holy. What an awesome aspiration for imperfect human being! Hashem sees holines , Yiddishkeit sees holiness where others may not. Children specifically are referred to as "holy ones" צאן קדשים

Within the parshah more than fifty Mitzvos are given to the Yidden. This tells us that to lead a holy life is to be someone who can be counted on to mend the world, treat others with love, bring Hashem's light into the world, and grow as Yidden, citizens and friends.

Our children are free from the day-to-day worries that we have. Generally, children can take health for granted, don't worry about paying a mortgage or other socioeconomic worries. Hashem designed it this way so that they would be able to dedicate their lives to being students, learning how to learn and how to live. When teaching someone to manage stress we want to practice before they are in a stressful situation, to do a dress rehearsal before the audience assembles.

Our children's youth is a gift given to them not to be absolved from direction or responsibility, it is a time to practice living like a yid in all scenarios before it counts, before the are obligated to live a full Torah-life. As parents, we play a critical role in guiding our children to lead these lives. This may be the reason why the Mitzva to honor and respects parents appears at the beginning of this parshah in this context.

We will be unveiling a yedios keloliyos program in the next week. Please express an interest in it and encourage your son to master this knowledge.

Thank you to Mrs. Litvack and the PTA for the Rebbies appreciate lunch. Your appreciation invigorates the Rebbe to learn and teach with more chayus.

Good Shabbos,
Rabbi Kaplan

A PEEK AT OUR WEEK

Second grade enjoyed reading the next chapter, "Farewell Fang," in our story. The time has come for Milo to release Fang, his pet snake. His grandpa understood that Milo would be sad, yet encouraged him to make the right choice. We learned when to use 'because', 'so' and 'but' in a sentence. Also, we practiced using singular and plural nouns. Our next spelling unit has words ending in "ay". The boys clapped along to count how many syllables in each word. In math, our focus is on subtraction with renaming (borrowing from the neighbor). Next week, ly"H, we will renew our homework responsibilities. Please encourage your son to complete and bring back sheets to school daily. Gut Shabbos!!

BH it was a wonderful week of learning and growth in Third Grade. In Math this week we continued learning about the decomposition of fractions. We used edible examples to understand the concept. In writing this week we continued working on our paragraphs about our Pesach vacation. The highlight of our week was a special nutrition class by Mrs. Sobol where we learned all about how to read food labels and to determine if a food is healthy for us to eat. We all learned so much and now know how to make healthier food choices!

Fifth grade was very excited to start a new chapter in their social studies book. We are studying the causes of World War I which is a precursor for World War Two. A fun booklet was given out reviewing all functions in fractions. It also included calculating the time from different time zones and adding or subtracting the correct amount of hours. We took a test on unit 14 in vocabulary and also finished unit 15. We love playing hangman as the word of the week is introduced. This week we learned that deoxyribonucleic acid stands for DNA and what the DNA does. We started reading a new story in our readers on Thursday. Have a Gut Shabbos.
